Seems like you're having server issues, so I'm sending this again.

Hi Dick...

Umm ok haha. Is everything ok? Do I get a hint?

I'll be in my office Tuesday morning. Feel free to come on out. Let me know when..anytime around 10-11 is good.

Hi Dick,

I had you on my call list today.

I checked the witness statements and reviewed the police report. According to the narrative, Jamie was stopped just past checkout as you stated. However, upon being stopped, she voluntarily pulled other items out of her purse. There is a receipt available that shows all items that were allegedly concealed.

I also checked on the GCIC record and when that goes on the GCIC. It is entered by the Sheriff when someone is booked into the jail/arrested. So, that will be on her record already. With that said, it can be removed if the record of the arrest is expunged. Our clerk can handle the expungement documentation once the case is disposed of, as long as it is a dismissal or not guilty. She has paperwork which can be completed at the time of disposition.

Based on the nature of Jamie's employment, lack of criminal history, and the circumstances of the case, I am agreeable to pretrial diversion. In order to expedite the process, she will need to take a shoplifting awareness class, which is available online and costs $75.00. If she brings the certificate of completion to Court on 11/17, I will add this to her file and she will have completed the program's requirements. There won't be a fee other than the cost of taking the class. I will then double check her criminal history to make sure there are no other infractions, and dismiss the case accordingly. We can then process the forms for expungement so it is completed ASAP.

The site for the class is www.shopliftingprevention.org<<http://www.shopliftingprevention.org>>>. She will choose "Enroll in Theft Class" for adults. The link should be near the top. She will select voluntarily complete the online class. She won't choose the court ordered case option since we don't have a Court Order, as this is Pre-Trial case. The courses are the same however. The length of the class should be 3-4 hours. Jamie can pay the fee online, follow the instructions and should be able to print the form at home. As long as this is complete by 11/17 and brought to Court, we will dismiss the case as a completed PTD.

I will be in the Courtroom on 11/17. Jamie will check in with me at the counsel table and we will handle everything then. As long as she is there by 840 am, she can avoid the major crowd.

Thank you!
Stefanie

I'm working on my schedule for next week. You know that we'd prefer an outright dismissal of this case (based on prosecutorial discretion) to avoid if possible and GCIC record. We need to know when you can tell us whether or if we will have to be in court next Friday, and, if it's possible or necessary to do Pre-trial Diversion, what fines or fees are to be paid, or, if a dismissal is actually possible, what court costs would be assessed.

You know I appreciate your help. Thank you, ma'am.

Correct. And for whatever reason every Jury trial I've ever had has been in that courtroom. Go figure.

Subject: Chili cook off

Good morning,

My orthopedic surgeons office called and worked me in at 11 this morning, so I won't be able to make the chili cook off. I was really looking forward to it! I'll be sending good thoughts for you to win, and thanks again for inviting me! I will see you tomorrow morning for court.

Have a great day,
Stefanie
